

The Charité - Universitätsmedizin Berlin is a joint institution of the Freie Universität Berlin and the Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin. As one of Europe's largest university medical centers with a rich tradition, the Charité not only plays a leading role in research, education and medical care but is also a modern organization with certification in the medical, clinical and management fields.

The Berlin School of Mind and Brain, in cooperation with Charité - Universitätsmedizin Berlin and Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, invites applications for a

Junior Professorship in Medical Psychology

Salary Group W1 BBesG (Ref. No.: Prof. 335/2008)

Applicants are required to meet the formal prerequisites for appointment of a Junior Professor in accordance with § 102a of the "Berliner Hochschulgesetz". The appointment will be for three years initially.

Professional requirements: The successful candidate should hold a doctorate in either psychology, medicine, neuropsychology, cognitive science, or a related field, and have an outstanding scientific track record in research focussing on brain disorders and associated cognitive dysfunction. Ideally, the candidate's field of expertise is related to one of the three core cognitive research areas of the graduate school (decision making, language, perception). However, the main recruitment criterion will be scientific excellence. The appointee will be a member of the faculty of the Berlin School of Mind and Brain (www.mind-and-brain.de) and of the Charité - Universitätsmedizin Berlin. Courses (in English) will be conducted at the international Mind-Brain Graduate School and at the Charité.

For inquiries about the advertised position, please contact the school's Managing Director (Annette.Winkelmann@uv.hu-berlin.de).

The Charité and the Humboldt-Universität are equal opportunity employers committed to excellence through diversity. Due to the underrepresentation of women in science, we explicitly encourage female applicants. Berlin, the Charité and the Humboldt University offer excellent conditions for young families. Our international program expressly invites applications from outside Germany.

Please send a curriculum vitae, description of previous achievements and current research interests, and include a brief research concept. For details see application instructions (http://www.charite.de/en/charite/organization/careers/employment_market/internship/) Applications should be sent by 20 June 2008 to:

Prof. Dr. Martin Paul, Dean
Charité - Universitätsmedizin Berlin
10098 Berlin Germany

